Foreword – President and CEO

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples have the longest surviving continuous culture in the world and have lived in this country for more than 60,000 years.

As stated in the Australian Red Cross Strategy 2020, “Australian Red Cross recognises Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples as first peoples and respects their inherent rights, cultures and strengths.”

This second Reconciliation Action Plan sets out our plan to translate this commitment into action. We aim to do this through respectful long-term engagement and working in partnership with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, organisations and communities to develop and implement sustainable community led solutions.

As part of the Australian community for over 100 years, Australian Red Cross seeks to prevent and alleviate suffering through mobilising the power of humanity. Today, one million Red Cross members, volunteers, donors, staff, blood donors and supporters make a positive difference in the lives of people in need every day.

This second Red Cross Reconciliation Action Plan sustains our commitment, to drive practical and specific actions to ensure that Australian Red Cross plays its part towards reconciliation within Australia.

Through our first Reconciliation Action Plan we have been able to:

1. Introduce a suite of initiatives, resources and training to improve cultural competency throughout Australian Red Cross;
2. Increase the number of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff across all parts of the organisation from 3.1% in 2012 to 6.3% in April 2015 through proactive recruitment and retention practices;
3. Strengthen ties and long term partnerships between Red Cross and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, communities and organisations;
4. Embed our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Strategy across program areas (including Emergency Services, Social Inclusion and Locational Disadvantage);
5. Achieve Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander representation on the Red Cross Board and National Leadership Team;
6. Review and adapt Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander specific programs to ensure their compliance with our Ways of Working, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Strategy and our Board’s Indigenous Policy Core Principles; and
7. Embed greater respect for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander culture throughout the organisation, including in respecting protocols such as Welcome to Country and Acknowledgement of Traditional Owners and proactively identifying opportunities to display respect through external communication and other practical mechanisms.

We are deeply committed to building on these achievements through the implementation of our second Reconciliation Action Plan.

On behalf of Reconciliation Australia
I commend Australian Red Cross on the implementation of its second Reconciliation Action Plan – a Stretch RAP.

As part of the world's largest humanitarian movement, Australian Red Cross has been a friend to Australians in difficult times for over 100 years. From the coastal cities to small, remote communities, the organisation has been a constant presence ready to assist the vulnerable.

In opting for a Stretch RAP, Australian Red Cross builds on lessons learned from its first RAP and makes a strong commitment to bring about change for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. As one of more than 600 RAP organisations around Australia, Australian Red Cross is using its unique capabilities and sphere of influence to make a real difference.

Reconciliation Australia's RAP program is integral in effecting social change in workplaces around the country. By enabling organisations to formulate their own blueprint for action, the program lays the foundation for real respect and understanding between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff and their colleagues.

Below: Justin Mohamed, CEO Reconciliation Australia.

That respect and understanding paves the way for sustainable opportunities in education, employment and business for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

Since 2012, Australian Red Cross has raised its employment level for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff from 3.1 per cent to 6.3 per cent. This Stretch RAP aspires to raise that figure to nine per cent and I applaud your proactive recruitment and retention practices to achieve that goal.

I congratulate everyone involved in the thoughtful formulation of this RAP. I am excited by the positive outcomes it promises to deliver and look forward to following your evolving reconciliation journey.

Our vision

Our vision for reconciliation

The vision of Australian Red Cross for reconciliation is that Australia's First Nations peoples share a prosperous, safe and healthy future with all other Australians.

Red Cross has a firm commitment to playing its part in achieving this vision by working respectfully and collaboratively with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

This is built upon:

1. The Red Cross Red Crescent Fundamental Principles of Humanity, Impartiality, Neutrality, Independence, Voluntary Service, Unity and Universality
2. Australian Red Cross Strategy 2020
3. Australian Red Cross Ways of Working
4. Additional Board endorsed policies and strategies including Policy Statement 5 Indigenous Policy Principles; Policy Statement on Diversity; Policy on Justice and the Impacts of Imprisonment; Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Strategy 2009-2015; Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Employment and Retention Sub-strategy 2009-2015; and Policy on Food Security for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples (in partnership with Public Health Association and Dietitians Association of Australia)
5. Australian Red Cross Reconciliation Action Plan (July 2012 - December 2013)

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Leadership Team

The Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Leadership Team play a key role in turning Red Cross' vision for reconciliation into real actions.

The team is an internal group made up of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff representing each state and territory and national positions.

The Team provides strategic thinking and leadership and provides a platform for discussing and influencing organisational policy as it affects Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff, volunteers and communities.

Who we are and what we stand for

Australian Red Cross is a member of the International Red Cross Red Crescent Movement (the International Movement) with millions of members and volunteers operating in over 189 countries. The three components of the International Movement are the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), 189 Red Cross Red Crescent National Societies, and the International Federation of Red Cross Red Crescent Societies (IFRC).

Our Movement's mission is "to prevent and alleviate human suffering... to protect life and health and to ensure respect for every human being".

This provides a significant footprint in all activities our volunteers, members and staff are guided by the Seven Fundamental Principles of the Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement.

Australian Red Cross has a strong presence in every state and territory, with capital city, regional and remote offices, operations, programs and services throughout Australia. This provides a significant footprint across Australia.

The same Fundamental Principles that enable Red Cross to work around the world empower our staff and volunteers to engage with their local communities in unique ways. Red Cross is neutral and impartial; we don't take sides in hostilities or engage at any time in political, racial, religious or ideological controversies. This unique approach gives Red Cross people the independence to work through what can be at times complex community challenges, and remain focused on building partnerships and relationships aimed at delivering community led humanitarian solutions.

Although Red Cross always remains independent, governments recognise our role as 'auxiliary to the public authorities in the humanitarian field', affording us a unique position in the humanitarian sector, with distinct rights and responsibilities.

Fundamental Principles

Humanity

The International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement, born of a desire to bring assistance without discrimination to the wounded on the battlefield, endeavours, in its international and national capacity, to prevent and alleviate human suffering wherever it may be found. Its purpose is to protect life and health and ensure respect for the human being. It promotes mutual understanding, friendship, co-operation and lasting peace amongst all people.

Impartiality

It makes no discrimination as to nationality, race, religious beliefs, class or political opinions. It endeavours to relieve the suffering of individuals, being guided solely by their needs, and to give priority to the most urgent cases of distress.

Neutrality

In order to continue to enjoy the confidence of all, the Movement may not take sides in hostilities or engage at any time in controversies of a political, racial, religious or ideological nature.

Independence

The Movement is independent. The National Societies, while auxiliaries in the humanitarian services of their governments and subject to the laws of their respective countries, must always maintain their autonomy so that they may be able at all times to act in accordance with the principles of the Movement.

Voluntary service

It is a voluntary relief movement not prompted in any manner by desire for gain.

Unity

There can be only one Red Cross or Red Crescent Society in any one country. It must be open to all. It must carry on its humanitarian work throughout its territory.

Universality

The International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement, in which all Societies have equal status and share equal responsibilities and duties in helping each other, is worldwide.

Humanity in action

We know that we are at our best when we work together as Red Cross people whether we are volunteers, members, staff or our supporters in the wider community.

Strategy 2020 is about building an active movement of people united by a shared agenda and commitment to humanitarian values. Further, we are aiming to ensure our work, our people and supporters reflect the changing and diverse face of the Australian community.

Our vision as set out in Strategy 2020, is 'human dignity, peace, safety and well-being for all' and our purpose is 'supporting and empowering people and communities in times of vulnerability, preventing and alleviating suffering across Australia and internationally through mobilising the power of humanity'. These inform our five strategic goals:

1. Build a diverse and active humanitarian movement based on voluntary service
2. Save lives, build resilient communities and strengthen disaster response and recovery
3. Prevent and alleviate human suffering in times of war and conflict and promote non violence and peace
4. Advance health, well-being and resilience of individuals, families and communities made vulnerable by dispossession, migration, displacement, illness or disadvantage
5. Maintain a strong, innovative, sustainable and accountable organisation capable of achieving our humanitarian goals

Building on strengths

Australian Red Cross is committed to working together as partners with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander organisations, communities and peoples. Our Ways of Working provide a set of approaches and practices that guide how we work as an organisation and they include the Building on Strengths statement:

We recognise the strengths of Australia's First Peoples and strive to work in culturally appropriate, accessible and sustainable ways. We build our ability to empower individuals and communities to have a voice and to better control their own lives and environments. Red Cross people find, grow and celebrate strengths, and strengths-based approaches inform and shape our decisions, programs and organisational processes.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples are best placed to address the needs of their own communities. We do not compete with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander organisations or seek to replace them. Internal processes for determining whether to pursue funding opportunities includes a focus on ensuring that we are not competing with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander organisations.

We aim to stand with, and support individuals, families and communities as they drive and lead their own solutions to achieve positive change, with a focus on prevention and early intervention. When developing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander specific programs, Australian Red Cross works in collaboration and consultation with the community, including Traditional Owners and the Elders and we seek to employ local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

Red Cross was the first non-government-organisation to formally adopt the NTCOSS Principles for developing partnership centred approaches for non-Indigenous NGOs working with Aboriginal organisations and communities in the Northern Territory in 2013. We have since also formally endorsed the ACOSS Principles for a partnership-centered approach.

Australian Red Cross's Reconciliation Action Plan is underpinned by our commitment to building long-term and respectful partnerships with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander organisations, families, communities and peoples.

Reconciliation Action Plan

The Australian Red Cross Board, the Chief Executive Officer, the National Leadership Team, the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Leadership Team, and an organisation wide Reconciliation Action Plan Working Group assisted in the development of this Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP).

In addition, Red Cross staff, volunteers and members responded to an organisation-wide survey with ideas about how Red Cross can make a meaningful contribution to reconciliation, and what we can learn from our previous plan.

We have learnt many lessons through our work on our first RAP. Some of the main lessons have been:

- The need for strong accountability for RAP actions in all areas of the organisation to ensure our RAP is front and centre and embedded in our everyday work.
- The need for strong data collection to help us measure progress (including successes and where improvement is required).
- The need for accountability to be allocated to those who are most directly responsible for each action.
- The need for a group of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander and non-Indigenous staff to proactively monitor and champion the plan.

These lessons have helped us shape this Reconciliation Action Plan and we have also engaged a broader range of staff and volunteers from across the organisation in its development. We understand that responsibility for developing and implementing our RAP actions should not lie solely with our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff, rather with each and every person at Red Cross including our members, staff and volunteers.

Relationships

Guided by our Fundamental Principles and Ways of Working, Australian Red Cross works together with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples respectfully and collaboratively to meet the aspirations and needs of local communities with whom we partner to benefit future generations. Australian Red Cross acknowledges that successful partnerships means working alongside Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, communities and organisations that guide and lead our work. Red Cross respects their ownership and ways of working and will remain answerable to those communities and organisations in all that we do.

Focus area: Ensure our relationships with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander individuals, families and communities with whom we partner, are meaningful, long term, respectful and culturally safe.

Respect

Australian Red Cross recognises Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples as Australia's First Nations peoples and respects their inherent rights, cultures and strengths. All Red Cross people are required and expected to acknowledge, respect, and be sensitive of the cultures and customs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples in all that they do. These expectations are reflected in organisational Code of Conduct, Position Descriptions, policies, strategies, Ways of Working and practices.

Our engagement with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, communities and organisations is undertaken with mutual respect, co-operation and transparency. Our approach seeks to build sustainable, positive and intergenerational partnerships with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and their communities.

Opportunities

Red Cross is building long-term and respectful partnerships by working with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, communities and organisations to determine and lead their own solutions.

To achieve this, our workforce must represent the diversity of the communities that we work in and so we are building our capabilities through meaningful and rewarding employment and volunteer opportunities for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. Red Cross has identified a number of indicators to monitor and evaluate success:

1. Representation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff at governance, management and executive level;
2. Consistent employment practices;
3. 9% of all staff identify as Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander by June 2018; and
4. The turnover of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff is consistent with the turnover for all staff.

Our 'Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff and volunteers – a targeted approach 2013-2015' provides a clear direction to achieve our objectives. In the upcoming update to this approach under Strategy 2020, we are working to maintain at least a 6% target of employment Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff with the aspiration of expanding to 9% over a period of time. Further, Red Cross seeks to ensure that their volunteering and/or employment with Red Cross is satisfying and rewarding at each stage of the workforce lifecycle.

Our RAP is also supported by our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Strategy 2009-2015, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Employment & Retention Sub Strategy 2009-2015, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Staff Engagement Survey 2013, Cultural Curriculum Framework, Ways of Working, and our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander 'a targeted approach' 2013-2015.

Focus area: Opportunities that support Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples develop and lead their own solutions are co-designed and developed between Red Cross and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, communities and organisations.
